

Master Services Agreement

Between Contoso Ltd. ("Provider") and Northwind Traders ("Client")

Effective date: 1 July 2026

1. Definitions

The parties shall perform their respective obligations with reasonable skill and care, in line with the standards generally accepted in the industry and any written specifications agreed between them. Each party retains ownership of its pre-existing materials; any deliverable created specifically for this engagement transfers to the Client upon full payment of the applicable fees.

Each party retains ownership of its pre-existing materials; any deliverable created specifically for this engagement transfers to the Client upon full payment of the applicable fees. Either party may terminate this agreement on thirty days' written notice, without prejudice to any rights or obligations accrued before the effective date of termination.

Either party may terminate this agreement on thirty days' written notice, without prejudice to any rights or obligations accrued before the effective date of termination. Neither party shall be liable for any indirect, incidental, or consequential loss, and each party's aggregate liability shall not exceed the fees paid in the preceding twelve months.

2. Scope of Services

Neither party shall be liable for any indirect, incidental, or consequential loss, and each party's aggregate liability shall not exceed the fees paid in the preceding twelve months. The Client shall provide timely access to the personnel, systems, and information reasonably required for the Provider to deliver the services described in the applicable statement of work.

Confidential information disclosed under this agreement shall be used solely for its purposes and protected with the same degree of care a party applies to its own confidential information. This agreement constitutes the entire understanding between the parties and supersedes all prior discussions; any amendment must be made in writing and signed by an authorized representative of each party.

3. Term and Renewal

The Client shall provide timely access to the personnel, systems, and information reasonably required for the Provider to deliver the services described in the applicable statement of work. Neither party shall be liable for any indirect, incidental, or consequential loss, and each party's aggregate liability shall not exceed the fees paid in the preceding twelve months.

This agreement constitutes the entire understanding between the parties and supersedes all prior discussions; any amendment must be made in writing and signed by an authorized representative of each party. Confidential information disclosed under this agreement shall be used solely for its purposes and protected with the same degree of care a party applies to its own confidential information.

4. Fees and Payment

Each party retains ownership of its pre-existing materials; any deliverable created specifically for this engagement transfers to the Client upon full payment of the applicable fees. The parties shall perform their respective obligations with reasonable skill and care, in line with the standards generally accepted in the industry and any written specifications agreed between them.

Either party may terminate this agreement on thirty days' written notice, without prejudice to any rights or obligations accrued before the effective date of termination. Each party retains ownership of its pre-existing materials; any deliverable created specifically for this engagement transfers to the Client upon full payment of the applicable fees.

Neither party shall be liable for any indirect, incidental, or consequential loss, and each party's aggregate liability shall not exceed the fees paid in the preceding twelve months. Either party may terminate this agreement on thirty days' written notice, without prejudice to any rights or obligations accrued before the effective date of termination.

5. Service Levels

Confidential information disclosed under this agreement shall be used solely for its purposes and protected with the same degree of care a party applies to its own confidential information. Invoices are payable within thirty days of receipt; amounts not disputed in good faith and left unpaid may accrue interest at the rate permitted by applicable law.

Invoices are payable within thirty days of receipt; amounts not disputed in good faith and left unpaid may accrue interest at the rate permitted by applicable law. The Client shall provide timely access to the personnel, systems, and information reasonably required for the Provider to deliver the services described in the applicable statement of work.

6. Client Responsibilities

This agreement constitutes the entire understanding between the parties and supersedes all prior discussions; any amendment must be made in writing and signed by an authorized representative of each party. Either party may terminate this agreement on thirty days' written notice, without prejudice to any rights or obligations accrued before the effective date of termination.

The parties shall perform their respective obligations with reasonable skill and care, in line with the standards generally accepted in the industry and any written specifications agreed between them. Neither party shall be liable for any indirect, incidental, or consequential loss, and each party's aggregate liability shall not exceed the fees paid in the preceding twelve months.

7. Confidentiality

Either party may terminate this agreement on thirty days' written notice, without prejudice to any rights or obligations accrued before the effective date of termination. This agreement constitutes the entire understanding between the parties and supersedes all prior discussions; any amendment must be made in writing and signed by an authorized representative of each party.

Neither party shall be liable for any indirect, incidental, or consequential loss, and each party's aggregate liability shall not exceed the fees paid in the preceding twelve months. The parties shall perform their respective obligations with reasonable skill and care, in line with the standards generally accepted in the industry and any written specifications agreed between them.

Confidential information disclosed under this agreement shall be used solely for its purposes and protected with the same degree of care a party applies to its own confidential information. Each party retains ownership of its pre-existing materials; any deliverable created specifically for this engagement transfers to the Client upon full payment of the applicable fees.

8. Intellectual Property

Invoices are payable within thirty days of receipt; amounts not disputed in good faith and left unpaid may accrue interest at the rate permitted by applicable law. Confidential information disclosed under this agreement shall be used solely for its purposes and protected with the same degree of care a party applies to its own confidential information.

The Client shall provide timely access to the personnel, systems, and information reasonably required for the Provider to deliver the services described in the applicable statement of work. Invoices are payable within thirty days of receipt; amounts not disputed in good faith and left unpaid may accrue interest at the rate permitted by applicable law.

9. Data Protection

The parties shall perform their respective obligations with reasonable skill and care, in line with the standards generally accepted in the industry and any written specifications agreed between them. Each party retains ownership of its pre-existing materials; any deliverable created specifically for this engagement transfers to the Client upon full payment of the applicable fees.

Each party retains ownership of its pre-existing materials; any deliverable created specifically for this engagement transfers to the Client upon full payment of the applicable fees. Either party may terminate this agreement on thirty days' written notice, without prejudice to any rights or obligations accrued before the effective date of termination.

10. Warranties

Neither party shall be liable for any indirect, incidental, or consequential loss, and each party's aggregate liability shall not exceed the fees paid in the preceding twelve months. The Client shall provide timely access to the personnel, systems, and information reasonably required for the Provider to deliver the services described in the applicable statement of work.

Confidential information disclosed under this agreement shall be used solely for its purposes and protected with the same degree of care a party applies to its own confidential information. This agreement constitutes the entire understanding between the parties and supersedes all prior discussions; any amendment must be made in writing and signed by an authorized representative of each party.

Invoices are payable within thirty days of receipt; amounts not disputed in good faith and left unpaid may accrue interest at the rate permitted by applicable law. The parties shall perform their respective obligations with reasonable skill and care, in line with the standards generally accepted in the industry and any written specifications agreed between them.

11. Limitation of Liability

The Client shall provide timely access to the personnel, systems, and information reasonably required for the Provider to deliver the services described in the applicable statement of work. Neither party shall be liable for any indirect, incidental, or consequential loss, and each party's aggregate liability shall not exceed the fees paid in the preceding twelve months.

This agreement constitutes the entire understanding between the parties and supersedes all prior discussions; any amendment must be made in writing and signed by an authorized representative of each party. Confidential information disclosed under this agreement shall be used solely for its purposes and protected with the same degree of care a party applies to its own confidential information.

12. Indemnification

Each party retains ownership of its pre-existing materials; any deliverable created specifically for this engagement transfers to the Client upon full payment of the applicable fees. The parties shall perform their respective obligations with reasonable skill and care, in line with the standards generally accepted in the industry and any written specifications agreed between them.

Either party may terminate this agreement on thirty days' written notice, without prejudice to any rights or obligations accrued before the effective date of termination. Each party retains ownership of its pre-existing materials; any deliverable created specifically for this engagement transfers to the Client upon full payment of the applicable fees.

13. Termination

Confidential information disclosed under this agreement shall be used solely for its purposes and protected with the same degree of care a party applies to its own confidential information. Invoices are payable within thirty days of receipt; amounts not disputed in good faith and left unpaid may accrue interest at the rate permitted by applicable law.

Invoices are payable within thirty days of receipt; amounts not disputed in good faith and left unpaid may accrue interest at the rate permitted by applicable law. The Client shall provide timely access to the personnel, systems, and information reasonably required for the Provider to deliver the services described in the applicable statement of work.

The Client shall provide timely access to the personnel, systems, and information reasonably required for the Provider to deliver the services described in the applicable statement of work. This agreement constitutes the entire understanding between the parties and supersedes all prior discussions; any amendment must be made in writing and signed by an authorized representative of each party.

14. Force Majeure

This agreement constitutes the entire understanding between the parties and supersedes all prior discussions; any amendment must be made in writing and signed by an authorized representative of each party. Either party may terminate this agreement on thirty days' written notice, without prejudice to any rights or obligations accrued before the effective date of termination.

The parties shall perform their respective obligations with reasonable skill and care, in line with the standards generally accepted in the industry and any written specifications agreed between them. Neither party shall be liable for any indirect, incidental, or consequential loss, and each party's aggregate liability shall not exceed the fees paid in the preceding twelve months.

15. Governing Law

Either party may terminate this agreement on thirty days' written notice, without prejudice to any rights or obligations accrued before the effective date of termination. This agreement constitutes the entire understanding between the parties and supersedes all prior discussions; any amendment must be made in writing and signed by an authorized representative of each party.

Neither party shall be liable for any indirect, incidental, or consequential loss, and each party's aggregate liability shall not exceed the fees paid in the preceding twelve months. The parties shall perform their respective obligations with reasonable skill and care, in line with the standards generally accepted in the industry and any written specifications agreed between them.

16. Entire Agreement

Invoices are payable within thirty days of receipt; amounts not disputed in good faith and left unpaid may accrue interest at the rate permitted by applicable law. Confidential information disclosed under this agreement shall be used solely for its purposes and protected with the same degree of care a party applies to its own confidential information.

The Client shall provide timely access to the personnel, systems, and information reasonably required for the Provider to deliver the services described in the applicable statement of work. Invoices are payable within thirty days of receipt; amounts not disputed in good faith and left unpaid may accrue interest at the rate permitted by applicable law.

This agreement constitutes the entire understanding between the parties and supersedes all prior discussions; any amendment must be made in writing and signed by an authorized representative of each party. The Client shall provide timely access to the personnel, systems, and information reasonably required for the Provider to deliver the services described in the applicable statement of work.

Signatures

For Contoso Ltd.
Name / title / date

For Northwind Traders
Name / title / date